

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Cat Professional Supports Newly Launched Animal Oracle

Press Release

21st July 2009

Cat Professional (www.catprofessional.com) is delighted to support Animal Oracle, the newly launched website (www.animaloracle.com) which aims to help conscientious owners anticipate medical disorders earlier. Stephen Barabas, veterinary surgeon and Chief Executive of Animal Oracle states "Animal owners are more knowledgeable about their pets than at any time in the past. However, the fact remains that animals still cannot talk and subtle changes in behaviour or mood may be symptomatic of a serious illness."

Animal Oracle gives pet owners the opportunity to input any symptoms or behaviours that their animal is displaying and offers advice on the potential urgency of the situation. If a visit to a vet is recommended the site gives owners a full listing of nearby practices and their contact information. Whilst not a replacement for veterinary advice the site, which has been developed by veterinary professionals, is an excellent first 'port of call'. Cat Professional's founder and Chief Executive, Dr Sarah Caney agrees with the website's mantra that "quicker medical intervention usually results in better resolution, happier owners and healthier pets."

As a newly launched site, Animal Oracle are keen to hear feedback and urge veterinary professionals and animal owners to visit the site, investigate any potential ailment or sickness, and find a local veterinary clinic through the clever Google map system. The website can be viewed at www.animaloracle.com and feedback sent using the 'Contact Us' link or by email to enquiry@animaloracle.com.

Cat Professional remains committed to providing specialist feline veterinary care and advice to cat owners and veterinary professionals alike. August 2009 will see the launch of 'Caring for a cat with hyperthyroidism' which will be the fourth title in the internationally acclaimed 'Caring for a cat' series.
